Our Heritage: Better Shipping for a Better Future

The theme for World Maritime Day 2018 has been designated by the International Maritime Organisation as 'Our Heritage: Better Shipping for a Better Future'. It provides an opportunity to take stock and look back and consider current and future challenges for maritime transport. The aim is to maintain, continue and strengthen the contribution of maritime transport towards sustainable growth for the benefit of the world's population. World Maritime Day has been celebrated by local branches of maritime professional organizations, supported by the University of Plymouth' Marine Institute, since 2008.

Keynote Speaker

Richard Clayton

Chief Correspondent Lloyds List

Former Editor Fairplay International

Richard Clayton trained as a shipbroker and gained a Masters in International Shipping at the University of Plymouth. He commenced work as editor of market research with Fairplay Shipping Weekly in 1984 and stepped up to become Editor of Fairplay in 2007. Today Richard is Chief Correspondent with Lloyds List where he writes thought provoking, analytical insight pieces. He is a very experienced speaker delivering keynote speeches to conferences and at major shipping organization events.
